KENTUCKY NEWS.

The fall session near Owensboro will commence Oct. 10.

The Columbia Speculator has the following account of a naval attempt at secession:

The boat and contents of Henry Clay, of Daviess county, were destroyed by fire at Frankfort.

There is a new postoffice established in Owen county called North Seven; it is 12 miles from the nearest town.

In Peppermint everything is suffering for the want of rain, but in most cases the crops are in good condition.

At Little Rock, last Saturday, there was a one-day fair, which was won by Cap. R. W. Price's pony, Lily, in $5.

The veterans of 1812 will have their next annual meeting at Louisville on the anniversary of Harrison's victory on the Thames.

The Owensboro Monitor says that fruit is more abundant this season in that locality than for many years. The supply of winter apples is very large.

The many friends of Hon. Thomas C. McCreary throughout our State will be gratified to learn that he has been elected to the Senate.

A melaner in Daviess county incites his wife with various threats, which soon become so harassing that his neighbors are said to be very sick.

A severe hill storm prevailed in the vicinity of Georgetown Friday night, inflicting great injury to the tobacco plants and making much damage.

John R. Johnson, formerly connected with the Corinthian Democrat, died at Paris, Ky., on Aug. 10. He was 60 years old.

The Lexington Press says that a young lad attending the Corbin Depot in an attempt to have a longer vacation than the half, had cut his throat Wednesday in an attempt to drown himself. He is another case of youthful love.

The Owensboro Monitor says: "Of the large and enterprising German population of our city, but few voices were raised in protest when the rebels captured and suspended all civil rights.

John R. Johnson, of the old and now deceased family, died at Paris, Ky., on Aug. 10. His death was sudden and several hours anticipated.

Dr. Ellis of Masonville performed a successful surgical operation on the nose of a man who had lost his nose from the attack of a dog.

Two rings of the troches were divided.

The Lexington Courier gives the following singular coincidence: "The folks at the market-place predicted disaster. The public, however, were not prepared for what they saw. The strangers to each other, rolled together in the mud, and the people who had hitherto been tenuously held in the vicinity of which took up their abode."

The Lexingtonians are amusing themselves killing their dogs. Fifty were killed Monday night, and Wednesday two hundred were hauled out of the city. Dog days may be about over.

To tell the truth, Mr. Wood does not intend to sell them all off, but is rapidly getting rid of the things Washington officials have done and are now doing. Life is too short for so long a story.

of a sum in a Justice's Court in East Moore. On the trial of a couple of persons who were charged with some trivial offense, the witness was compelled to say that he had been sent by the Office Reports and the culprits were sentenced to pay a fine of $100, and a sum of money to be paid to the Court. This was certainly not out of order.

The Louisville Banner thinks it "cute of the question" to comply with the following request. It says: "A female who signs herself 'X' has written to me, asking me to publish her name. She has been vainly trying to get the permission of the authorities to do so. I have given her leave to do so, and she has written to me to let her lecture on 'The Emancipation of Women.' She is a woman of a good character, and I hope the Governor will give her the same permission."

trial and more or less absurd pretensions to continue the farce and disiplinary work of the court. We hate partition dogmatism. We are willing right now to wipe out all the old scores. But not so long as the drill-masters persist both in their proscription and in their error. As far as it is possible for events to vindicate the integrity and the correctness of any line of conduct, we will do so.

We know that evil enough and feel very about it. So, with this message, we are ready to smoke the pipe of peace with the Bourbons. We don't want to see them mortified. We don't want to expect to see them driven out of the Democratic party. We don't want to see them have to change their coats of a sudden, and just in time to catch the "new departure" by the tip end of its coat tail.
Many of them are able, and we have seen them do all this.

It is evident a master is which is irreversible.

The Yeoman is hereby commissioned to cheer him up a bit and invite him to chirp.

France and Italy.

The cable dispatch reporting the grand debate on the Roman question in the French National Assembly has given us but a very imperfect idea of that stormy session. The regular report shows that it was a scene of intense excitement, and that the whole session was filled with shouting and cheering.

The Yeoman is here to give the whole story, and add immensely to the personal beauty of an article now being sold by our own known knowns as Magnolia Hall. We hope that such a thing would be very popular.
